Anxiously, the brave children crept towards the horrifying door. Creeping quietly as they got closer. Afraid but persistent they exchanged looks. First in line was, Jake the strongest but the smallest all though his blond hair that shone in the sun made him look tall. Next was Zayn the tallest however he was the most scared. After Zayn was Ferrie who had sapphire blue eyes and long blond hair. Last was Lilly-Rose, the bossy one and the leader but besides her bossyness was her long brown and wavy hair. Now the door lay in front of their eyes.

Suddenly Lilly-Rose swiftly turned to Ferrie and declared, "Quickly Shine the torch and go in first!" She responded, "But...but...I'm really scared!" "Ha! Useless!" Laughed Lilly, "Take the stake, Zayn and hold it up. Strike the stake with the rock and I'll hold the cross aloft. None of them answered back to her. The plan was in place. Everyone knew what they were doing. It was down to them now.

Hearts pounding as fast as a racing car going 90 miles per hour the warriors entered silently into the horrifying room 13. It took a short moment for their eyes to adjust to the demons den to hades house. The beast's bed lay upon their eyes looking as imposing as a gigantic sky scraper. The blood howling beast lay inside the coffin of doom. His icy white skin almost seemed to reflect their fears as they looked upon him. Perrie's torch flickered on and their shadows raced across the room like a bunch of jockeys on horses. It was smaller than they expected but big enough to keep the spirit of death at the top of their minds.

Zayn raised the stake and pointed it towards the vampire's cold blooded heart and ~~step~~ stepped closer. Lilly-Rose held her cross up high meanwhile in the corner the vampire's eyes flickered open. The beast awoke and got out the blood covered coffin, the four brave children held out their weapons at that moment the monster saw the tools of terror. Lilly-Rose held the cross aloft and all of a sudden the vampire lunged forward. The fearless children powerfully dived ~~it~~ onto the creature which left him tumbling over. Suddenly Zayn pushed the stake directly at his heart and he howled in pain. Finally. It's dead. They did it.
